About ACC

- The Accident Compensation Corporation (ACC) is the Crown Entity set up to deliver New Zealand's Accident Compensation Scheme.
- ACC was established following a Royal Commission of Inquiry, and since 1974, has provided a no-fault Scheme for personal injury, replacing the right to sue.
- The goal of the Scheme is to minimise both the overall incidence of injury in the community, and the impact of injury on the community (including economic, social, and personal costs), through:
 - Promotion of measures to reduce the incidence and severity of personal injury,
 - Rehabilitation of injured people with the goal of achieving an appropriate quality of life through the provision of entitlements that restores to the maximum practicable extent a claimant's health, independence, and participation,
 - Monitoring of access to the Scheme by Māori and identified population groups and delivery of services that supports access to the Scheme by those groups,
 - Providing fair compensation for loss from injury, including fair determination of weekly compensation and where appropriate lump sums for permanent injuries,
 - Ensuring positive experiences for claimants through a Code of ACC Claimants' Rights.
- ACC has a strong workforce across the country supporting injured people to return to work and independence.
- ACC ensures the Scheme is sustainable through efficient collection of levies, claims management, and managing a long-term investment fund to cover its liability.
- ACC recognises that Te Tiriti o Waitangi | The Treaty of Waitangi is a founding document of the Government in New Zealand and established the country as a nation. ACC aims to support the Crown in its Te Tiriti o Waitangi | The Treaty of Waitangi relationships and deliver our services in ways that enable equitable outcomes for Māori.

Context

Foreword from the Board Chair and Chief Executive

ACC is a unique part of New Zealand society and has helped people recover from injuries for over 50 years. ACC accepts more than two million injury claims each year, providing treatment, rehabilitation and compensation to those who need it.

Over the last decade, rising costs and deteriorating rehabilitation performance have put financial pressure on the Scheme. More people are accessing support for longer, and the cost of providing treatment, rehabilitation and compensation has grown significantly. We must act now to ensure the Scheme is able to support future generations.

ACC is committed to providing the support people need, when they need it, to recover from their injuries and return to work and independence. We want people to be confident they will receive timely, fair and effective support from ACC, in line with our legislative mandate.

Our strategy sets out how we will become a trusted and high-performing organisation over the next three years, through a focus on our strategic priorities, people and organisational culture.

We know that turning around the organisation's performance will be challenging, but we are united by our common purpose: improving lives every day. As stewards of the Scheme, our focus is on ensuring it is financially sustainable for future generations.
